The main results include a functional cooperation mechanism, analytical documents, and concrete recommendations for urban and cultural development. Key activities include signing a cooperation agreement with the municipality, forming the working group, field research and consultations, developing intervention concepts, documenting the process, and organizing a public hearing to present the proposals. Citizens and target groups are structurally involved throughout consultations and co-design processes, contributing to the identification of needs and the development of ideas. The project will be implemented in Lipjan. Through this model, the project aims to establish a sustainable practice of civic participation at the local level, in line with the legal framework for governance and public consultation.
