Summary of the grant:	The project "FILMITRO II: Urban Narratives" aims to contribute to raising awareness about more public spaces equity through the use of documentary film as a civic tool for documentation, reflection, and public dialogue. Building on the proven results and methodology of the FILMITRO I project, this initiative empowers marginalized groups, including women, youth, persons with disabilities, the elderly, and minorities, as well as young professionals and students to articulate their experiences regarding the use of and access to public spaces and public buildings. Through the production of 6 short documentary films, the project generates concrete findings on about 6 urban and/or suburban areas, transforming them into tools for reflection and public advocacy. The project will be implemented over a 7-month period using the city of Mitrovica as a case study, while the films created there are planned to be screened in 3–5 other cities across Kosovo through a national cycle of screenings and discussions. Main activities include a preparation and participatory research phase involving target communities in the 6 selected locations, an extensive 7-day film workshop for 15–20 youth/students, the production of 6 thematic films, public screenings and discussions with the community and local institutions, as well as the execution of a tactical urban intervention in Mitrovica based on the awareness-raising findings of the films. The project actively includes citizens and target groups in all stages of implementation. This project aims to lay the conceptual and structural foundation for developing FILMITRO into a sustainable platform and thematic festival, a sustainable medium, strategic objective of the NGO PSE, linking film, public spaces, and tactical urban interventions, with an initial scope in Mitrovica and later expanding to other cities in Kosovo

Co-financed by:
